A Look at the Century Plant.

The American Agave, or Century Plant, now in blossom at the Van Rensselaer Manor House, and exhibited for the benefit of the Albany Orphan Asylum, naturally attracts many visitors. I visited it to-day, among hundreds, and found it worth the trouble. With the general appearance of this plant when not in blossom, the reader will naturally be acquainted, as it is found in most Botanical establishments. It consists of some ten to thirty sword-shaped leaves or branches, three or four feet long, three inches wide, and as thick as a man's hand, all springing out from the root together, and receding more or less from their common centre as they grow. Out of the centre of these, in the plant which has for sixty years been in the possession of the Van Rensselaers, a stalk for the first time shot forth on the 8th of June last, and had attained the hight of 22 feet 6 inches on the 8th inst. when it ceased growing. I should judge it some four inches through or one foot in circumference at the base, tapering very little till it has reached a length of some fifteen feet, when it begins to throw off stout branches. These branches are 28 in number, some of them three feet long, and display each three, four or more buncees of greenish yellow flowers, as they may be termed, though there is marvelously little of floral beauty or similitude about them. The blossoms of the Chestnut or White Ash will give a better idea of them than those of any plant which I happen now to remember. In fact, the likeness to the Chestnut flower is very considerable, except that those of the Agave stand perpendicularly up from the branch instead of drooping or depending, while no leaf or foliage is found upon any part of the stalk or branches. Some of the upper branches are not yet expanded, while the lower are now in full blossom. The plant is protected from the weather by a house of wood and glass, and I understand its flowering has been hastened some years by heat. In tropical South America, of which it is a native, it blossoms in a few years; in this climate, none have been known to flower under forty or fifty years; though I do not learn that there are any precise data for the popular belief that its natural period is just a century. (Of course, it is understood that if left absolutely to Nature, the Agave never would blossom here at all.) The precise age of this one is not known, as it was bought by the Van Renssclaers at auction in New-age, but, if properly protected and warmed, it is expected to put forth and ripen its flowers for some dies, unlike the Aloe, with which it has been confounded. The Aloe is of Asiatic origin. The Agave has been known to reach forty feet in hight.

The first that was known in England flowered in 1729. There are several varieties of the plant.

THE TRIBUNE. LATER FROM EUROPE.

The steamship COLUMBIA, Capt. E. C. Miller, arrived on Tuesday morning at Boston, from Liverpool, bringing Liverpool papers of the 20th, and Lenden dates of the 19th. The treaty, which was taken out by the Britannia, was well received in England. All the principal journals unite in its approval. Wilmer's News Letter says:

The termination of the long-pending difference between the two countries would have been of great service in reviving trade, had not the announcement been compled with the fact that the American Executive had passed the Tariff Bill imposing an increased duty on the import of English manufactures into the States. This subject, since the arrival of the Britannia, has been one affording much discussion in the London journals, and between those of the two political parties great finerence of opinion exists. The and contending that the measure will operate to the prejudice of British manufactures, the other that it will materially benefit them. The general feeling among mercantile men who look upon the subject, not in a political, but in a business point of view, however, is decidedly hostile to the measure. The trade with the United States has long been declining, and now, it is thought by many, it will scarcely be worth any attention. "There have been some symptoms during the last few days in Manchester and the neighboring manufacturing districts of a renewal of the disgraceful riots which recently took place in that and other districts. The discentent, engendered by the scarcity of food, has been checked, but not subdued. The Liverpool Cotton market continues dull and inactive, with prices on the decline .-Holders, however, continue firm in demanding high prices, which accounts in some measure for the limited business going forward, manufacturers holding off in the hope of holders submitting to reduced rates. Since our last publication the London Money market has presented no feature of striking importance, if we except the effect produced by the receipt of the treaty settling the North-Eastern Boundary and other questions between England and America. Immediately on its being known in the city that the United States Senate had ratified the treaty, Consols advanced one fourth, and other kinds of stocks in a corresponding ratio."

Queen Victoria and Prince Albert arrived at Windsor Castle on Saturday, Sept. 17th, from their tour in Scotland. The large cotton mill of Messrs. Lockwood and Thornton, situated in Salford, Eng., with its contents, were destroyed by fire on Saturday, 17th ult. Loss £13,000. Insured.

The colliers in almost the whole of the pits in the neighborhood of West Bromwich and Oldbury, have resumed work.

In letters from Lyons we see it remarked that the bad and stagnant position of things in silk manufactures is creating much distress among the operatives. As the winter approaches, it is feared it will greatly increase; and the privations to which these classes, from the dearth of employment and the inclemency of the season, will then be exposed, are regarded with much apprehension for the public peace and safety.

In the town of Zablagen, Wirtemburg, there has been lately opened a new printing establishment by M. Theodore Helgerad. All the compositors and pressmen are deaf and dumb, to the number of 196, 11 of whom are women. They have all been educated at his own cost to the employment they are now engaged in. The King has conferred on him a large gold medal for this great reciamation from the social and moral waste.

FRANCE .- According to the Quotidienne, the amount voted by the Chamber of Deputies for the fortification of Paris will fall very far short of the expenditure: Of the 140 millions voted, 75, it says, have already been expended, and 25 are due to the contractors, so that 40 millions only remain. It would appear that the secret societies in Ra-ris are still meditating insane projects. On Sunday several Sectionaries went out to St. Maur, a village five miles distant from that capital, to make a triel of a new infernal machine. They placed it under one of the arches of the bridge, and having set fire to it by means of a long match, it produced a tremendous explosion, but its destructive effects did not come up to their expectations. Several of the party were arrested.

The Commerce states, on the authority of a let ter from the Chateau d'Eu, that Marshal Soult would be appointed governor of the Invalids, and that General Dodge de la Brunerie, the director of the fortifications of Paris, would succeed the Marshal in the war department.

The Commerce states that the French government had at last resolved on granting, at the request of M. Piscatory, the million of francs demanded by the Greek cabinet.

The Siecle denies that there is the slightest probability of the adhesion of the United States to the Treaty of the Right of Search. They may perhaps, says the Siecle, acknowledge the right under certain restrictions, and in certain zones only; but how, it asks, would such recognition justify the French government in ratifying the treaty in opposition to the declared opinion of the SPAIN .- Madrid, Sept. 10th .- It was still re ported that a modification would shortly take place in the cabinet. Nothing positive, however, was known on the subject.

There was some talk about a general amnesty being granted to political offenders. Some members of the cabinet, however, were of opinion that this act of clemency should emanate from the cortes, which, it was then believed, would be convoked for the 1st of November. The former Carlist Chief Fidalgo, who was or ganising a new band in Gallicia, had been taken prisoner near Pontevedra. The nuns of the suppressed convents of Leon were reduced to such a state of want, that the officers of the garrison had made a subscription in their favor. CAPE OF GOOD HOPE .- The London Times of the 19th, contains an extraordinary Government express from Port Natal, in the British possessions at the Cape of Good Hope, with important news, dated the 3d of July, with information of the junction of the reinforcement sent from Cape Town with Capt. Smith. The troops had suffered much from the want of provisions. From the 25th May to the 26th June the Boers invested his camp, preventing all communications with him. and capturing his provisions, stores, &c., which obliged him to place his men on half rations, and to fight daily on disadvantageous terms. On the 26th June her Majesty's ship Sot thampton arrived and landed 500 or 600 men, who drove the Boers into the bush, and relieved Capt. Smith from his perilous situation. Lieut. be inferred the interest that must attend its dis-glowing :-we quote the following passage relating

"We have now seven or eight authentic records of the sudden appearance, and subsequent extinction, of new and brilliant fixed stars-splendid orbs burst-ng from the bosom of infinity, and after blazing for while, retiring slowly into their unknown remoteness. This phenomenon has once or twice been manifested so suddenly, as to strike the eye even of the multitude. One of the most remarkable instances occurred to Tycho, the illustrious Dane.

On the 11th November, 1572, as he was walking through the fields, he was astonished to observe a new star in the constellation Cassiopeia, beaming with a radiance quite unwonted in that part of the Heavens. Suspecting some disease or delusion about his eyes, he went up to a group of peasants to ascertain if they saw it, and found them gazing as it with as much astonishment as himself. He went to his instruments, and fixed its place, from which it never afterward appeared to deviate. For some time it increased in brightness-greatly surpassed Sirius in lustre, and even Jupiter; it was seen by good eyes even in the day-time, a thing which happens only to Venus under most favorable circumstances; and at night it pierced through clouds which obscured the rest of the stars. After reaching its greatest brightness, it again diminished, passed through all degrees of visible magnitude, nomenon equally imposing took place in another part of the Heavens, manifesting precisely the same succession of appearances. We are quite baffled to account for these astonishing displays. If the bodies n question are moving in orbits, how singular that no change of position was observable, and how tremendous the velocity which could sweep these suns in so brief an interval from a region comparatively close to us, to the invisible depths of the Heavens!

Some ground of probability is furnished by a comparison of records, that the star seen by Tycho is not a stranger, but one which appeared before, appear in forty or fifty years from the present date, strange system of phenomena it exemplifies, will be to cut my tongue off #t the root; but as it seemed un-certain whether this would put a stop to the ravages of such a discase. I preferred to risk my life rather than submit to

A scrofulous affection now commenced on my right check

A scrofulous affection now commenced on my right check a little below the sye, and continuing inward soon attacked the bone, forming matter internally, which discharged in the mouth through an opening caused by the extraction of a tooth. The disease then suized upon the roof of the mouth, just under the opening from the nose, and soon destroying the bone, continued its progress upward and backward into the bones of the nose, which it destroyed, together with the cartilages. A gathering then took place in my head, which discharged a thick fetid matter from the nose, which resembled soft bones or shells, as it came out in strings as large round as a goose quill. Pieces of bone also dropped from my head into the mouth through the passage made by the disease in the upper jaw. The complaint now spread over the nose and enveloped both eyes, destroying the lower eye-lashes and stopping the opening from the eyes to the nose, which caused almost a continual flow of tears. My memory also was so much affected that I could not retain any thing I heard said for five minutes; and my condition, if not wholly was nearly that of idiocy. The disease occasionally appeared to be better, and then Hooked toward death as the termination of my sufferings.

ABRAHAM HATFIELD,

New York, August 23, 1842.

Gentlemen.—A tale of misery and woe is mine to tell, and as memory ever constant in the task brings back scenes that have past, I shudder at the picture and almost wonder if it is so. For months stretched upon a bed of suffering and distress, racked by the most excruciating pain, dum5 with agony—the only voice that came from my lips the voice of groaning, and my only hope despair. Often and often while others slept in the still hours of night, I have turned my face to the wall and wished to die.

Although I stood on the brink of eternity and the thread ter taking the mercury I began to feel its poisonous influence. My whole glandular system became affected, also the bones, joints and muscles; lumps formed upon the skin heat, which keptswelling until they broke, and discharged matter and blood. These continued to increase until they covered my whole body. But his was only the beginning of my afflictions; now commenced those torturing pains termed chronic rheumatism. Attimes it seemed as if I was stretched upon a rack and all my limbs were being torn from each other; at others as if sharp knives were piercing me at every point. The muscles of my legs seemed tied in knots and were as hard as a bone. My distress was now so whisper from heaven. The second day after I commenced taking it I felt the pain much easier and went to sleep. I had not sleep like this before for months. By the time I had used one bottle, the pain had nearly left, the eruption was also much better. I now felt a strange hope gathering in my breast that I should live! perhaps be cured. No; this could not be. I dared not believe it. I sent and got another hottle, continuing in my prover rapidly, and still another, and the same course for relief.

and the senses with disgust. I was then a man who was broken down with suffering and disease, whose cup of misery was more than full. I looked upon the werld as dead to me; the past and future were both alike; but while memory proves true to her trust, and reason sits enthroned, so long will I cherish with heartfelt gratitude the benefit I have received (under the blessing of Divine Providence) from the use of your Sarsaparilla. In two weeks from the time I began using the medicine, the internal ulcers began to heal and new flesh to form. This has continued until I am entirely cured and wholly so, from the use of your medicine. My feelings are such as I cannot describe. I can scarcely realize that I am the suffering object of pity I was so short time ago. My appetite is good, I sleep naturally, and for two weeks past I have been able to follow my trade (which is that of a shoemaker,) almost as well as at any period of my life. by Fire, at the reduced rates of premium, at either of the above places, and losses sustained will be liberally adjusted and promptly paid. officers.
